3. Description of project

3.1 Background and justification:
Post-war aid and reconstruction primarily addressed the humanitarian and developmental needs of children and women, but did not effectively tackle discrimination and social exclusion. This is also reflected in the general lack of relevant statistical information disaggregated by gender, ethnicity, age and social status, or information on living standards and the quality of life. The UN Common Country Assessment (CCA) in 2003 identified social exclusion as a key factor preventing citizens from contributing to and fully participating in BiH society. As underlying causes, the CCA highlighted the importance of both institutional and direct individual discrimination with its origins linked to the political and administrative fragmentation along ethnic lines, the lack of an enabling environment for the participation of civil society and attitudes within families and communities. There is evidence indicating the existence of specific vulnerabilities of children and consequent social exclusion based in poverty and as a result of disability, displacement, ethnicity (especially Roma), gender, religion and the rural/urban divide. Due to socio-economic exclusion and discrimination, children in BiH are increasingly exposed to multiple vulnerabilities emerging from increasing exploitation and abuse combined with basic forms of socio-economic exclusion of their families.

An integrated SPIS is needed to enable the government to meet its international requirements and to contribute to the eradication of social exclusion, child poverty, discrimination and inequality in accessing basic social protection services. The complex structure of the BiH government has been taken into consideration and the action will support institutions from the state, entities and cantons, in the sectors of health, social welfare, education, judiciary, finance, the interior, labour and employment. The project has explicit support from the Directorate of Economic Planning (responsible for anti-poverty measures) and the State-level Ministry of Human Rights and Refugees.

Currently, the SPIS in BiH is characterised by different functional and participation gaps, namely in legislation, policy, capacity, planning, implementation, monitoring and evaluation and a lack of collaboration between different governmental levels. The system does not provide equality of access to social protection services; is dependent on unequal economic powers of administrative units and is unable to act via mixed and inter-sectoral approaches to protection and inclusion of children. As a result, the system lacks the capacity to assess the needs of vulnerable groups and adequately target social protection responses based on human rights principles. There is a need to review functions and competencies required for a mixed model of social protection and inclusion. Such a system must be able to make the most efficient use of resources from the public, private and civil society sectors and to ensure protection of the most vulnerable and excluded, as well as, those in need of special protection.

Within and among key sectors, legislation is currently not harmonised in such a way as to provide a coherent framework enabling the targeting of social protection responses to the most vulnerable. There is a proliferation of laws, policies and strategies in BIH that are meant to address the special vulnerabilities of the population and ensure safeguards for adequate implementation of the development and protection policies but no mechanism for coordination and harmonisation of such policies exists. Whereas the understanding of the need to establish stronger inter-sectoral linkages, as evidenced in the revised BIH Medium Term Development Strategy (MTDS), these linkages remain largely superficial. For these reasons, there is a need for harmonisation of legislation and the development of adequate national definitions of social inclusion, poverty and social protection and or the use of these definitions to inform the development and social inclusion agenda.

The non-harmonised implementation of legislative, policy and strategic measures also results in an inconsistent planning of pre and in-service training of service providers in the social protection sector. Functional reviews and similar reform processes have identified the need for capacity building in the areas of policy development, planning and implementation in the key government sectors, but the social protection system is not able to develop policies or legislation that focus on feasibility by integrating budgeting and financing, develop national capacity development plans, standards and implementation guidelines for service providers or develop adequate social indicators to monitor service delivery within the framework of social and economic development priorities. Policy, legislation and implementation plans must be phased and based on feasibility studies, costing and standards.

Participation mechanisms are also underdeveloped in all areas of programme development - from assessment to monitoring and evaluation (M&E) phases. Children and families have no direct access to decision-making, which creates a climate of social apathy and dependence on a service delivery system that is neither client-focused nor based on the awareness of the rights or legal entitlements of its beneficiaries/ rights holders. Awareness raising and dissemination of information must be carried out amongst Municipal decision-makers and families, parents and child care providers.

Finally, regarding monitoring and evaluation, there is a need to build capacities at the national level to monitor trends and evaluate the efficiency of development and poverty reduction policies, as well as the impact of macroeconomic policies on excluded and vulnerable populations. Assessments of the level of vulnerability and exclusion must be based on the human rights principles of accessibility, adjustability and acceptability.

3.2 Assessment of project impact, catalytic effect, sustainability and cross border impact (where applicable)

Currently, the SPIS in BIH is characterised by different functional and participation gaps, namely in legislation, policy, capacity, planning, implementation, monitoring and evaluation and a lack of collaboration between different governmental levels. The system does not provide equality of access to social protection services; is dependent on unequal economic powers of administrative units and is unable to act via mixed and inter-sectoral approaches to protection and inclusion of children. As a result, the system lacks the capacity to assess the needs of vulnerable groups and adequately target social protection responses based on human rights principles. There is a need to review functions and competencies required for a mixed model of social protection and inclusion. Such a system must be able to make the most efficient use of resources from the public, private and civil society sectors and to ensure protection of the most vulnerable and excluded, as well as, those in need of special protection.

Within and among key sectors, legislation is currently not harmonised in such a way as to provide a coherent framework enabling the targeting of social protection responses to the most vulnerable. There is a proliferation of laws, policies and strategies in BIH that are meant to address the special vulnerabilities of the population and ensure safeguards for adequate implementation of the development and protection policies but no mechanism for coordination and harmonisation of such policies exists. Whereas the understanding of the need to establish stronger inter-sectoral linkages, as evidenced in the revised BIH Medium Term Development Strategy (MTDS), these linkages remain largely superficial. For these reasons, there is a need for harmonisation of legislation and the development of adequate national definitions of social inclusion, poverty and social protection and or the use of these definitions to inform the development and social inclusion agenda.

The non-harmonised implementation of legislative, policy and strategic measures also results in an inconsistent planning of pre and in-service training of service providers in the social protection sector. Functional reviews and similar reform processes have identified the need for capacity building in the areas of policy development, planning and implementation in the key government sectors, but the social protection system is not able to develop policies or legislation that focus on feasibility by integrating budgeting and financing, develop national capacity development plans, standards and implementation guidelines for service providers or develop adequate social indicators to monitor service delivery within the framework of social and economic development priorities. Policy, legislation and implementation plans must be phased and based on feasibility studies, costing and standards.

Participation mechanisms are also underdeveloped in all areas of programme development - from assessment to monitoring and evaluation (M&E) phases. Children and families have no direct access to decision-making, which creates a climate of social apathy and dependence on a service delivery system that is neither client-focused nor based on the awareness of the rights or legal entitlements of its beneficiaries/ rights holders. Awareness raising and dissemination of information must be carried out amongst Municipal decision-makers and families, parents and child care providers.

Regarding monitoring and evaluation, there is a need to build capacities at the national level to monitor trends and evaluate the efficiency of development and poverty reduction policies, as well as the impact of macroeconomic policies on excluded and vulnerable populations. Assessments of the level of vulnerability and exclusion must be based on the human rights principles of accessibility, adjustability and acceptability.

The Ministry of Human Rights and Refugees will assume the administrative leadership for this project, with close cooperation from the Ministry of Civil Affairs and DEP at the state level. Representatives from the Council for Children (housed in the MoHRR), District Breko, Entity and Cantonal Ministries of Health, Education and Social Welfare, Institutes of Public Health, Pedagogical Institutes, the Gender Mechanisms and NGOs will participate in the Management Board for the project, as well as in the related project Working Groups. Close cooperation will also be ensured with the new Social Policy Council, which is being established by a DFID-funded project managed by the DEP.

3.6 Conditionality and sequencing:
The necessary pre-conditions for project launch are already in place.

3.7 Linked activities
This is the first such initiative financed from bi-lateral assistance projects. A number of smaller scale initiatives have been carried out through both macro and micro projects financed by the European Initiative for Democracy and Human Rights and aimed at social integration of particularly vulnerable groups of children, in particular Roma. Many of these projects have been successful on a local level.

3.8 Lessons learned
As a result of the above there is a consciousness both within the Commission and the governments of BiH that such support has to be moved to a more strategic level in order to maximise impact and to ensure both institutional and financial sustainability. The present project will therefore closely engage all responsible government institutions in this sector.

Parallel Co-financing
DFID has committed a total of 1,620,000 EURO for 3 years (May 1, 2007 – April 30, 2010). The Norwegian government has committed $408,000 USD for Year 1 of a 3-year project. There is still no official start date for the Norwegian contribution, but funds are expected by June 2007 for the first year’s activities. The activities to be supported by these two bilateral donors will only serve to compliment the activities to be supported by the ECD. The EC-funded activities can, however, be implemented irrespective of the other funding.

5. Indicative Implementation Schedule (periods broken down per quarter)
It is proposed to award the contract to UNICEF by direct agreement. UNICEF is the only organisation present in BiH which has the ability to implement a project on this scale drawing on its own knowledge of legal basis of children's rights and legal representation vis a vis the authorities of the country. It is anticipated that the contract will be signed in the 1st quarter following the signature of the Financing Agreement. It is intended that this project represent the first part of a 3 year commitment to this sector.

6. Cross cutting issues (where applicable)

6.1 Equal Opportunity
Many of the children whose rights will be improved by the project are from mono-parental families, with the parent being in the most case the mother. Special emphasis will be placed by the project on such groups, which have been identified by successive studies in BiH to be particularly likely to be poor.
6.2 Environment
N/A

6.3 Minorities
Minority groups, and in particular, Roma, will receive special attention from the project as constituting an important section of vulnerable children in the country. The rights of Roma children to health care, education and physical protection are violated to a high extent.

ANNEX III Reference to laws, regulations and strategic documents:

Link with the European Partnership
BIH is a signatory to the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child (UN CRC) and the Millennium Declaration. Despite considerable progress in various domains over the past decade, BIH still faces a number of constraints to development, such as a fragmented political and administrative structure and a social agenda hampered by decentralisation, political interests and a lack of strategic and consistent approach to policy-making. The European Partnership obliges BiH to take measures to "Ensure full compatibility of national legislation with the European Convention on Human Rights" and to Implement the international conventions ratified by Bosnia and Herzegovina, including reporting requirements."

Link with MIPD
The MIPD states that "Community assistance will support Bosnia and Herzegovina to fulfil its obligations towards returnees, minorities and vulnerable groups, including children." Section 2.2.1.1 Main areas of intervention, priorities and objectives" refers to "Support to the Minorities (particularly Roma) and vulnerable Groups, in particular children, to facilitate their economic and social inclusion." Section 2.2.1.3 Programmes to be implemented in pursuit of these objectives"

Link with MTDS
Project takes into account BiH's Medium Term Development Strategy's strategic priorities and objectives (Points 1.2, 2.1, 2.2.1.1 and 2.2.1.2 of MIPD).
